

The 2½ threat

By Sean

I going to tell you what I think of TV,sports and video games will be like in 50 years. I'm going to start with TVs. I think that in 50 years TVs will be able to go in 3D or something better than 4G it might be called 10GK Maybe? Also it could turn into a tablet in the car and anywhere else you would want a tablet also it would a TV of course, and it would look sleek, cool and thin. After talking about TVs of course I'll tell you about what I think sports and video games,will be like in 50 years. You know how kids like me play soccer,football and basketball on fields and courts. Well if kids want to play soccer then they'll play FIFA and with football then they'll play Madden and same with all the other sports with high tech connects. And that's why the title is called the 2½ threat, because you haft to move around to move your guy or girl in game(which you may have Known). So I think video games will may replace field and courts. Also I play a video game called overwatch, Blizzard the company has created a league that countries can join. Some countries have already joined like canada, U.S.A, Australia and more. Now I'll talk about the graphics. Have you seen call of duty a.k.a cod WW2 it looks like it could be real. Imagine the games in 50 years and the graphics they only get better, if they didn't have so much violence they would be amazing! That's what I think TVs, sports and videogames will be like in 50 years. What do you think TVs sports and videogames will be like in 50 years?
