

My Future

Author, and editor,
Zack Michael Walker

I woke up at 6:00AM, it was a usual friday morning in 2068, in my forever home. I mean I have lived here for all of my life, here in Bedford Nova Scotia. I wanted to be a sports player when I was young. Although I'm sort of glad it didn't work out. Because I really like this place. I woke up just in time to see the beautiful sun rise as slow as a snail. That's how I knew it was gonna be a good day. Because every time I woke up in time to see the sunrise, it was always a good day. Now thanks to global warming, it is 37 degrees in fall. Although scientists invented a space shuttle that was sent to stop global warming. It had two brave participants, their names were Jim and Jennifer Kings. They had a special leaf blower. It blew so hard, it was supposed to stop global warming. It did, which was good, although it started global cooling. We can not get the world at the right temperature. I did my morning routine, and then I went to my sisters house. I promised her after she turned 60, that twice a week that I would go to her house and help out with things. I mowed her lawn and cleaned the living room. She made the cookies that I love the most. She got the recipe from the book my mom made of recipes.

“Mmm, I love them. You got them hard but not too hard on the outside. Also nice on the inside.” I told her.

“Thanks, I have been working on getting them like that.” My sister answered. I drove home, turned on me 30 inch TV, and leaned back in my massage chair. When the football game went on commercial. I looked to my right, and I saw a picture of me in 6th grade. I remember the summer before that school year, Halifax began to take the turn for the future. Everything was going to be made of glass. After Halifax was done, soon all of Nova Scotia became what it is today. Today the houses on my street are so much bigger, and the yard space is larger. All I have to ask is, what will the future be like from now...